Jackie, a 22-year-old orang-utan, has been put on a three-month quarantine<sup>1</sup> in a wildlife park in Malaysia before she can be released<sup>2</sup> back into the wild. Jackie, who is very close to humans, was discovered by villagers when she was only two years old. From that time on, they looked after the orang-utan and spoiled her on large amounts of food which she loved. Finally Jackie had over double the body weight of a normal female orang-utan. Although the park keepers do not want to stress Jackie too much, they've decided to put her on a strict healthy diet. Without reducing her weight, she cannot be returned to the wild.

In 1881 Ed Berners, a shop owner, started to sell a new ice cream dessert, later known as an "ice cream sundae". It happened when a customer asked Berners to serve him a dish of ice cream topped with syrup normally used for sodas. Berners liked the customer's wonderful idea and added the dessert to his daily menu, charging only five cents. George Giffy, the owner of the shop next door, felt he had to serve the same dish as Berners at the same price. However, Giffy decided to only serve this ice-cream dessert on Sundays. The name of the day soon became a part of the name of the dish – "the ice cream Sunday". When Giffy realised that he was making good money from the "ice cream Sunday", he changed the name to the "ice cream sundae" and served it every day.

Last month, a luxury car was stolen in Helsinki. Several days later, the police found it empty and damaged. At first they couldn't identify the thief, but when they inspected the car, they discovered a tiny witness in it – a mosquito. The insect was sent for testing, which showed that the blood it had drunk belonged to Jussi Aho, a professional car thief. This week, Aho was questioned at the police station, but he insists he didn't steal the car. He says he hitchhiked and got a lift from the man driving the car. So the court must now decide if the blood sample is enough to put Aho in prison.

A Flat or a Hotel Room

Some Hong Kong hotels are selling their hotel rooms to be used as homes. Last week hundreds of people living in Hong Kong waited for a long time to buy a room at the Horizon Hotel situated close to the city centre. Although it is not clear whether the buyers can legally live in the rooms, they still want to, because it is one of the ways of coping with<sup>1</sup> housing prices, which are among the highest in the world. The most luxurious hotel rooms in Hong Kong are still cheaper than flats of the same quality. The Horizon Hotel was able to sell all 360 of its rooms in two days – a sign there is a demand<sup>2</sup> for housing at a price the citizens can afford.

Long-lost Van Gogh

On Monday, the Van Gogh Museum in the Netherlands began to show a painting by Van Gogh. "Sunset at Montmajour", an oil landscape, was presented by the museum's director as a "unique experience that has never happened in the museum's history". The long-lost work had been lying for years in the attic of the house of Norwegian collector Erik Johannessen. His grandfather bought it at an auction in 1908 but later started to believe the painting wasn't a real Van Gogh so he hid it in his attic. Last year Erik asked art expert Dr. Michael Ronfort for an opinion, and the expert authenticated<sup>1</sup> the painting as Van Gogh's. The shocked collector has allowed the museum to exhibit this precious discovery from the attic for a year; then the painting will be returned to Norway.

The First Woman Who Sailed Around the World

Jeanne Baret was born in 1740 to a poor family in Burgundy, France. As a teenager, she had already become an expert in the medical properties<sup>1</sup> of plants. One day, when she was picking plants in the fields, she met her future partner Philibert Commerson. Philibert had studied law, which was his father's wish, but later he decided to follow his own interests and to become a botanist. His father was mad about this decision. He said it was a waste of time, turned his back on his son, and so Philibert lost all his father's love and money. Later, Philibert's job as a botanist led him to the countryside where he fell in love with Jeanne. It was love at first sight.

At that time, French ships sailed around the world and collected samples<sup>2</sup> of rare plants that could be grown in France and might bring money to the country. An expedition to Tahiti was planned, and Philibert was chosen to be the botanist on the ship Étoile, commanded by Captain Bougainville. It was a great opportunity for Philibert, but not for Jeanne, because women weren't allowed on royal ships. But the couple found a solution to get Jeanne on board: dress her as a man and introduce her as the botanist's assistant. At that time she also started using the masculine spelling of her name, Jean.

Jeanne successfully acted like a man until arriving in Tahiti. A Tahitian named Aotourou came on board the Étoile, cheerfully greeted all the sailors and respectfully bowed down<sup>3</sup> before Jeanne, calling her "mahu". That made her angry and she quickly ran into her cabin. Aotourou offered an explanation: in his culture some women dressed and behaved like a person of the opposite sex. They were called "mahu" and had a respected place in society. Aotourou believed Jeanne to be a "mahu".

In 1768 the Étoile headed back to France. When it stopped at the island of Madagascar, Jeanne and Philibert decided to stay there to collect more plants. Philibert never returned to his country; two years later he died on the island from an unknown infection he had caught in Tahiti.

After Philibert's death, Jeanne wanted to return to France, but she had no money. She worked as a herb expert and barmaid to survive. While she was preparing drinks, she met Claude Dubernat, a Frenchman, who was on his way back to France after serving as a soldier in the colonies. Jeanne and Dubernat married in 1774. A year later, the couple returned to France with boxes of plant samples and presented them to the French government to support botanical research.

Jeanne became the first woman to complete a round-the-world voyage. Right after her return to France, Jeanne got a good pension from the French government for her service on the expedition and moved to the French countryside to enjoy a quiet life far away from people. She died in 1807 at the age of sixty-seven.

Přečtěte si informace o pěti lidech, kteří chtějí jít do kina, a nabídku filmů. Na základě informací v textech přiradte k úlohám 44–48 vždy jeden inzerát A–G. Dvě nabídky jsou navíc a nebudou použity.

44 Howard _____

He is a student of literature who loves going to the cinema. Although he likes music, he hates musicals. He doesn't like crime films and only watches American films. He wants to see westerns and films about Indians adapted from a book.

45 Emily _____

She is an Italian but now works in a musical theatre in Britain. She loves music and romantic films. She hates films with a lot of killing but doesn't mind a bit of crying. She loves her mother tongue and wants to see some places from her native country in the film.

46 Lora _____

She is an American music teacher who loves music and theatre. When she goes to the cinema, she wants to see a film based on a theatre performance. She prefers musicals and she hates happy-ending romantic love stories.

47 Alec _____

He wants to go to the cinema with his Italian girlfriend Liz. Liz hates historical films but loves love stories. They both dislike theatre plays and musicals but like instrumental music. Both of them want to see an American crime story from a US production company. Liz speaks English fluently.

48 Michael _____

He always chooses films adapted from famous books. He would never watch a love story or a comedy. Music is important to him. He loves seeing the American countryside in films, but he hates American films. He never watches dubbed films.

A)

This American film, adapted from the detective novel by Jeremy Allen, is based on the lives of real American criminals. A young couple in love turn from small crimes to robbing banks and killing people. Finally, the police shoot both lovers, which is one of the most horrible scenes in the history of crime films. Instrumental banjo music is frequently used in the film.

B)

You can't miss this legendary Italian film! During a state visit to Rome, a young princess runs away from the palace to see how the ordinary people in Italy live. An American reporter picks her up and shows her the sights of Rome. Of course they fall in love. However, it has a bit of a sad ending for a romantic comedy. Recently a musical based on this film was presented at the Guthrie Theater. The film is in Italian with English subtitles.

C)

This extremely funny film set in Britain follows the adventures of Charles (played by Mike Morgan, known for his strong British accent), a man unlucky in love. During different social occasions, Charles repeatedly meets with an Italian girl, spends several nights with her and finally marries her. Pop music fans will love the popular songs used in this British romantic comedy. The film has recently been made into a successful theatre play.

D)

This tragic love story was inspired by William Shakespeare's theatre play "Romeo and Juliet" but this time it is set in New York City in the 1950s, and not in Italy's Verona. It is a musical film showing two teenage street gangs of different ethnic backgrounds. As in Shakespeare's play, the two main characters fall in love, although they should be enemies, and die in the end. The great music and focus on social problems marked a turning point in American film musicals.

E)

This film is set in the USA and documents a teenage Italian girl's relationship with a dance instructor whom she meets during her family's holiday in California. She falls in love at first sight. Originally, it was a low-budget love-story film, but it became a hit. The success of this Italian film was brought mostly by the amazing soundtrack winning many music awards. This musical film was also adapted for the stage.

F)

Although this is a historical film set in North America during the French and Indian War, it is definitely not only a boy's adventure. The American film, based on a famous American novel, is also a romance describing the love of a white girl, played by beautiful Italian actress Carla Rosellini, for one of the main Indian characters. The sad ending of this western with the main characters dying will make you cry. The fascinating instrumental music in the film helps the mood. Rosellini was dubbed by the great Michaela Meyer.

G)

This Italian film is known as one of the greatest films ever made. Its unforgettable music makes it even more famous than the original book. The Italian western shows the conflicts in a small town in the American Old West during railroad construction. The story follows the revenge against a cold-blooded killer and includes a lot of shooting and killing but also long scenes in the dry American semi-desert. The film is in the original language with English subtitles.

Bart, Homer, Marge, Lisa and Maggie. These are the famous characters from The Simpsons series, which has been on TV (49) _____ more than 20 years. Maybe you know them, (50) _____ you do not watch the series. Almost everyone (51) _____ who the Simpsons are as they are the (52) _____ TV cartoon characters in the world. They are something like a symbol of America. It is hard to believe that you can (53) _____ one phrase that Homer often says in the series in the Oxford English Dictionary as a normal English phrase. It is D'oh! and it (54) _____ when Homer injures himself or realises that he has done a stupid thing.

In January 2010, The Simpsons celebrated its 20th anniversary in a special TV show. This show featured<sup>1</sup> interviews, the history of the series, news, funny moments and (55) _____ 450th episode of this great series. The authors also showed (56) _____ the jokes came from.

How long will The Simpsons (57) _____? The creator of the show, Matt Groening, says probably until the actors Dan Castellaneta (Homer's voice) and Julie Kavner (Marge's voice) (58) _____ 70 or 80 years old.

The Simpsons have (59) _____ fun of religion a lot of times. It is (60) _____ that the Vatican newspaper said the humour of the series is realistic and intelligent and it is okay.

Last year, the U.S. Postal Service (61) _____ five first-class stamps with the characters from The Simpson series. And now they are finally on sale. Matt Groening says that it is a really big honour for the show. Bart Simpson enjoys (62) _____ stamps, and this is a motivation for (63) _____ young teenagers.
